Queen Elizabeth Hospital

Construction of Multi-Faith Sacred Space

The contract was awarded by Queen Elizabeth Hospital Kings Lynn and the NHS Trust and involved the construction of a timber frame, timber clad building located in one of the central courtyards.

The difficulties identified were working in a live establishment, the access arrangements and distribution of materials. These all needed daily management in the busy hospital environment. We were not allowed to use a crane to lift materials in over the accommodation, as a consequence we attended site early before the start of the hospital working day.

The soft timber construction was sympathetic to the surrounding building and the proposed function of the new building.

Completed for the Christmas services in 2008 following a very demanding ten week programme.
